STATEMENT OF PROBABLE CAUSE

The Complainant states that the following facts establish probable cause:

Your complainant has reviewed police reports relating to the above-named defendant and the allegations contained herein. Based upon that information, complainant believes the following to be true and correct.

On August 11, 2013, Pine County Sherriff Deputies Freund and Carlson received a report of animal abuse from an anonymous individual. Deputies met the individual, who declined to be identified, and received a report that Kathleen Doenz, date of birth 08/26/1948 was engaged in activities resulting in cruelty to animals on her property. He stated that he had recently been at a property located at 24099 Holly Road and observed numerous animals at the property. The party described numerous horses that appeared skinny with their ribs showing, a horse with long and overgrown hooves, and a horse with an untreated leg injury resulting in the horse's skin peeling down its leg.

On August 27, 2013, Pine County Sherriff's Deputy Jackson visited the property and observed several fenced dogs and horses within plain view. Deputy Jackson noted a tan horse that appeared to be under nourished, with bones protruding from under its skin. The horse had no access to grass, hay, grain, or potable water from its enclosure. Also visible to the Deputy was several dog enclosures housing approximately 11-12 animals. There did not appear to be any food in the dog enclosures. Deputy Jackson took several photographs of the animals and enclosures.

The photographs obtained on August 27, 2013 were forwarded to the Minnesota Board of Veterinary Medicine for evaluation of the animals and condition. On, August 28, 2013, Dr. Julie Wilson, DVM, Executive Director of the Minnesota Board of Veterinary Medicine, provided her observations of the animals and the conditions on the property as visible in the photographs. Dr. Wilson indicated that all horses visible in the photographs were thin or very thin, indicating severe malnutrition. Dr. Wilson noted that muscle wasting was evident in several of the horses, a condition where the body burns muscles for energy when all fat is depleted and there is insufficient food available. Dr. Wilson also noted that the only plants available in the photograph were weeds and toxic to horses if eaten.

On September 12, 2013, Pine County Sherriff's Deputies and Investigators executed a search warrant at 24099 Holly Road in Pine City to search for animal neglect. Dr. Dolores Gockowski and Dr. Jeske Noordgraaf, Doctors of Veterinary Medicine, provided their professional veterinary services to assist in evaluating the animals and conditions. When Deputies arrived at the search warrant location, they identified two individuals on the property, Kathleen Mary Doenz Date of birth 08/26/1948 and Gloria Carlson, date of birth 05/17/1927. Investigator Sjodahl spoke to Doenz and Carlson. Doenz and Carlson admitted joint ownership of all animals on the property. Both stated that they had 21 or 22 dogs, 13 horses, and several chickens and ducks that roam free on the property. They stated that neither of them live at the property but they both come out to the property each day to care for the animals.

Investigator Giese assisted in the search of the property and noted a very strong, rank odor throughout the property. He proceeded to an area of external and exposed dog kennels and observed several occupied kennels. Most of the exterior kennels were occupied by more than one canine; all kennels were occupied. There was no sign of food in any of the kennels and most had no water. A few of the kennels had stagnant water that was either brown or green in color and was considered to be non-potable. Two separate barns were located on the property that also contained kenneled canines. Investigators observed little to no natural lighting in those buildings and the ventilation was exceedingly poor, causing a substantial odor. No food or potable water was located in the barn area or kennels, with the exception of decaying food on the floors of some kennels mixed with the animal's excrement. Food dishes contained in the cages were empty, buried, or caked with mud and excrement.

There was a total of 21 canines located on the property. Investigators were unable to locate any food on the property for the canines. All canines were enclosed in small kennels with either inadequate shelter or ventilation. All water found in the kennels was non-potable and unsafe for consumption. When asked about feeding the animals, Doenz stated that money was very tight but they had planned to have Carlson travel to the store today to buy 10 bags of dog food. Dr. Gockowski described the canine living conditions as deplorable, noting that the animals were required to walk and lay on their own excrement mixed with mud and various pieces of debris.

12 live equines (horses), and various equine skeletal remains were located on the property. 11 horses were contained in an overgrazed pasture; one mature stallion "Luke", five mares, three foals, a yearling, and a 2 year old. One stallion "Doc" was located in a separate enclosure.

All equines scored below average on the Henneke Body Condition Scoring Chart (BCS), a veterinary scoring index ranging from 1 to 9 where 1 is near starvation and 9 is overweight. A score of 5 is ideal/average. Two of the equines, identified as "Doc" and "Whitney" scored a 1 on the BCS, indicating the final stages of muscle wasting and starvation. All other equines were underweight with scores ranging from 1.5 to 4.5.

The enclosure containing "Doc" was devoid of foodstuff's or grass pasture area. Weeds in the enclosure had been consumed leaving only mature weed stems. No potable water was found in the enclosure. The only water tank contained stagnant water with algae growth. The enclosure contained a trace mineral block in the dirt, no shelter, unsafe fencing, baling twine, bailing netting, a leg bone from a large animal, and wood debris.

The only water available to the 11 pasture enclosed equines was contained in water tanks and was non-potable. A pond located within the enclosure had a large algae perimeter. A trace mineral block was located in the dirt of the enclosure area. The pasture enclosure contained mature weeds, which are toxic to equines if consumed. All edible grasses in the pasture were overgrazed. The enclosure area was littered with plastic bailing twine. Bailing twine is a hazard to horses, either becoming tangled around the extremities of animals or ingested and clogging digestive systems. No grain or hay was located on the property. Metal fence posts were haphazardly placed, protruding into the enclosure, creating hazards for the animals. Six equine skulls ranging from juvenile to mature were located in various areas of the property along with various other bones. One skull still contained chestnut hair.

Deonz stated that she does all of her own farrier (hoof trimming) care and all of her own vaccinations. Doenz admitted that the horses were not properly vaccinated and not properly de-wormed.

17 ducks were located in one of the barns on the property. The ducks were contained in a room with no access to the outside, fresh air, water, or food. All ducks were completely covered with the excrement and mud that filled the room. Food and water containers in the room were unused and covered with duck excrement. No feed was located for the ducks on the property.

27 small chickens and 57 large chickens were located on the property. No potable water was located for the chickens and no chicken feed was found on the property.

Dr. Gockowski and Pine County Sherriff's Officers determined that neglect was evident on the property and seized all animals that had been in the care of Doenz and Carlson at that location.

During the seizure, all large animals were evaluated by a veterinarian. The equine mare identified as "Summer" scored a 2 BCS. Summer was thin with bilateral forelimb lameness, with laminitis and stress rings on her hooves due to lack of proper trimming. The hooves were long, imbalanced, and severely cracked. Summer walked with a painful gait, bobbing her head. Summer was determined to be lame. Summer was euthanized due to her severe condition.

A post mortem necropsy performed by the University of Minnesota Veterinary Diagnostics Laboratory found that Summer was pregnant with twin foals. The necropsy findings included a BCS of less than 2. Final diagnosis included mild serous atrophy of adipose tissue suggestive of a negative energy balance. Negative energy imbalance may be caused by malnourishment, parasitic overload, or malabsorption. Summer's parasite load was not found to be overwhelming. Atrophy extended to the bone marrow tissue, one of the final stages of tissue breakdown. The findings also included chronic overgrowth of the Summer's front hoofs.

The equine mare identified as "Whitney" scored a 1 BCS. Whitney was found to be severely emaciated, drooling saliva, and was a possible rabies suspect. Doenz reported that Whitney had been drooling for weeks and inappetent. Whitney had an untreated wound on her right front lateral forearm. The wound was swollen, infected and weeping blood and exudate/serum. The skin of the wound was partially avulsed with a swollen skin flap hanging from the wound. Whitney had long and imbalanced hooves with bilateral hind fetlock knuckles when standing, a permanent and debilitating condition caused by lack of hoof trimming. Whitney was euthanized due to her condition.

A post mortem necropsy was performed by the University of Minnesota Veterinary Diagnostics Laboratory. The necropsy findings included a BCS score of 1. The main findings of the necropsy included emaciation with serous atrophy of bone and muscle tissue. The findings were consistent with a negative energy balance. A severe parasitic overload was present in Whitney. Overgrowth of the hooves was also noted in the findings.

The male equine identified as "Doc" scored a 1 BCS. Doc's body condition was severely emaciated and the animal was "close to death," according to Dr. Gockowski. Dr. Gockowski initially considered euthanizing Doc due to his severe body condition. Doc had long and imbalanced hooves with stress rings.

A male Great Pyrenees canine identified as "Hugo" was seized from the property. Hugo was referred for immediate veterinary care for embedded dew claws. Hugo's dew claws were growing into the pads of his paws causing lameness, pain, inflammation, and permanent disfigurement. Hugo's nails were overgrown and curved under his paw causing him to bear weight on the nail instead of the foot. Long term joint and musculoskeletal damage occurs from prolonged nail overgrowth and neglect. Hugo's foot pads had open sores, leaving necrotic tissue on his paws due to the nail overgrowth. Hugo also suffered from hair overgrowth over his anus due to lack of grooming. Hair and fecal matter were matted together over the animal's anus preventing the canine from defecating.

A female German Sheppard Canine identified as "Ozzie" was seized from the property. Ozzie scored a 1 BCS. Doenz stated that Ozzie had been found two weeks earlier hanging from the chain link fence of her kennel by her paw. Doenz did not seek veterinary care for the canine. At the time of seizure Ozzie's right hind leg was swollen and unable to bear weight. Later veterinary care and examination determined that the tissue around Ozzie's paw had become necrotic. Two toe nails and one toe were removed.

Dr. Gockowski confirmed that, absent prompt medical intervention, Summer, Whitney, Doc, Hugo, and Ozzie, did suffer, or would have suffered, permanent disfigurement or death due to the prolonged neglect.
