STATEMENT OF PROBABLE CAUSE

Filed in Seventh Judicial District Court
12/29/2017 03:52:38 PM
Douglas County, MN

Your Complainant, a duly licensed peace officer for the State of Minnesota, is employed by the Alexandria Police Department and has reviewed the reports generated during the investigation of this matter. Your complainant asserts that the following is true to the best of the complainant's knowledge and constitutes probable cause to believe that on or about September 22, 2017 to September 27, 2017, within the City of Alexandria, Douglas County, State of Minnesota, Bio Company, a Domestic Business Corporation doing business as Bio Corporation, the Defendant herein, violated the law as set forth herein.

On October 31, 2017, Jay Halverson, a Detective Sergeant with the Alexandria Police Department, began to investigate a complaint of cruelty to animals committed by Bio Company, DBA Bio Corporation, Defendant herein, pursuant to a District Court Order. Det. Halverson received information from a woman named Katherine Jones, who was employed by People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (hereinafter PETA), that indicated that on and around September 22, 2017, Defendant's employees had drowned a number of pigeons to death. Furthermore, Ms. Jones provided information that on September 27, 2017, Defendant's employees had killed a number of crayfish by injecting them with colored latex, without first using any method to kill the crayfish or render them unconscious. Ms. Jones provided Det. Halverson with a video depicting these acts, which was recorded from within Defendant's facility using a hidden camera. Ms. Jones recorded the video while she was Defendant's employee. Four live pigeons and one dead pigeon are visible in the video dated September 22, 2017. At least 20 latex-injected crayfish are visible in a tub in the video dated September 27, 2017. Many of these crayfish are still moving.

Detective Halverson reviewed a transcript of court proceedings held on October 26, 2017 in Douglas County, including the testimony of Dr. Ingrid Taylor, a veterinarian employed by PETA. Dr. Taylor testified that she was familiar with the American Veterinary Medical Association (hereinafter AVMA) recommendations for euthanasia, and that the drowning of pigeons is an unacceptable practice for euthanizing birds. Dr. Taylor testified that drowning causes an unnecessarily painful and prolonged death, taking up to ten minutes, during which time the birds are conscious. Dr. Taylor testified that this causes intense pain, discomfort, and bronchial and lingual spasms as water floods the birds' lungs and gastrointestinal tract. In Dr. Taylor's opinion, the act of drowning these birds caused unnecessary pain and suffering.

The transcript of the October 26 hearing also details Dr. Taylor's sworn testimony regarding the crayfish, indicating that injecting the animals with latex is an unacceptable method of euthanasia under any circumstances, and is prohibited under AVMA guidelines. Dr. Taylor testified that injection of latex into the crayfishes' thoracic cavities would cause them to feel pain and to experience up to ten minutes of pain and suffering—during which time they would remain conscious—until the latex stopped their lungs and respiration.

On November 22, 2017, Det. Halverson contacted Defendant's owners, Ben Hedstrom and William Wadd, and met with them that day at approximately 9:45 a.m. Mr. Hedstrom and Mr. Wadd were familiar with the complaints about the facility and the video taken within due to recent media attention. Mr. Hedstrom explained that Defendant is engaged in preparing and selling animal specimens for dissection in schools for educational purposes. Mr. Hedstrom stated that a majority of their sales were from stillborn pigs, but provided a catalog which indicated sharks, crayfish, turtles, pigeons, and other animals are available. Mr. Hedstrom told Det. Halverson that the facility is inspected and licensed by the United States Department of Agriculture, and that the facility follows AVMA guidelines with any live specimens that are on-site.

Mr. Hedstrom told Det. Halverson that the facility typically receives frozen pigeons; however, Mr. Hedstrom stated that some organizations or private individuals sometimes leave live pigeons at the facility. Mr.

Hedstrom explained that this does not happen often, but that they drown the pigeons when the receive them, stating that they euthanize the pigeons "the best way we know how." Mr. Hedstrom was familiar with the common practice of gassing pigeons, but stated the company is not in favor of that process due to employee safety concerns.

Mr. Hedstrom told Det. Halverson that the crayfish seen in the PETA video were dead before being injected with latex dye. Mr. Hedstrom stated that all crayfish are placed in a large bag and submerged in a solution of ethylene glycol, formalin, and acetone. Mr. Hedstrom stated that the crayfish do move after being submerged, but that movement is a postmortem nerve movement.

Det. Halverson obtained consent to inspect the facility. Det. Halverson observed employees working on fetal pigs, rats, cats, lamprey, mink, and small sharks. Det. Halverson did not observe any live or dead pigeons, crayfish or turtles. Mr. Hedstrom stated that these are "seasonal items" or "by order."

Based on Det. Halverson's investigation, PETA was asked for its input regarding the ethylene glycol, formalin, and acetone mixture, and whether it satisfied AVMA euthanasia guidelines for crayfish. On December 18, 2017, Dr. Taylor provided a response via email indicating that acetone and ethylene glycol —which is the main ingredient in antifreeze—are considered unacceptable for euthanasia of aquatic invertebrates under AVMA guidelines. Furthermore, formaldehyde and formalin are unacceptable except as a "second step" of a two-step euthanasia method, where the animals are first rendered unconscious through an acceptable "first step" process.
